

ABSTRACT

An object of the present invention is to provide a power storage device with excellent cycle property, employing a cathode containing a nitroxyl
5 polymer. To attain the object in the present invention, in the power storage device employing a cathode comprising a nitroxyl polymer, a lithium or lithium alloy anode is used as an anode active material and the cathode is in direct contact with the anode.